Answer the following questions. Use your answers to determine the credibility of your source!

1. What is your source? □ Website □ Book □ Database Article □ I don’t know
2. How did you find it? □ Google □ I-Share □ Database □ Other (explain) ____________
3. What is the title? ____________________________________________________________
4. Who is the author? __________________________________________________________
   a. Google the author. What are the author’s qualifications to write on this topic?
      __________________________________________________________________________
   b. Is the author’s purpose to persuade or inform?
      __________________________________________________________________________
5. Locate the publisher or page sponsor— look for more information in the “About Us” page or on the publisher’s website. How does this information change how you think about the source? ____________________________ ____________________________________________________________________________
6. What is the publication date or the last updated date? Is it current enough for your topic? ________________________________________________________________
7. Was the source published in print? Was the article printed in a popular magazine/website or a scholarly/peer-reviewed journal? ____________________________
8. What is the main idea of the source? What new information does this add to your topic? _________________________________________________________________
9. Is there a works cited or reference list? □ Yes □ No
The Incredible Credibility Scale

How credible is your source?

Write your citation in this box.
Draw a line to the point where you think your source would be on the scale!

How credible is this book?